To Whom it May Concern:

I have been an architect in the Indianapolis home renovation market since 2005. During this time I have had the good fortune of working closely with Chris Wright of Wrightworks on many projects. It is a pleasure to write a letter of reference for him.

Working with Chris has not only been enjoyable, it has been an education. While he is exceptionally well-versed in standard building and remodeling practices, Chris also possesses a characteristic that far too few contractors seem to have: a willingness to try new ways of making things. He is understanding and respectful of our designs and is always willing to try whatever is necessary to achieve the design intent of our work. That said, he always brings his substantial knowledge of best-practice construction techniques to the task, so that the end result will never be something that looks good but does not function or will not stand up to long-term use by the owner. His knowledge of construction - encompassing the entire construction field from estimating to scheduling to client relations to industry trends - makes him an invaluable resource and has helped me to become a better practitioner and designer.

Chris also provides the best possible remodeling experience for his clients. Disruption of one's home is never easy on a homeowner; through attentive and respectful service, Chris and his crew always earn their clients' trust and appreciation for minimal conflict to their daily routines. When we refer our design clients to Wrightworks, which we do often because we so enjoy working with him, we have utmost faith that both they and we will be completely satisfied with the outcome.

Chris is a dedicated, intelligent, and sensitive craftsman. He brings a level of care to his projects that not only satisfies but impresses all of our homeowner clients. We are always pleased to have the opportunity of working with him on our projects.

Sincerely,

Donna Sink RA, AIA
